1993 Parliament of the World's Religions in Chicago records

Date Range: 1983-1999
Quantity: 16 LF, 78 boxes
Creator: Council for a Parliament of World’s Religions
Location: 3/26

History
According to its website, the Council for a Parliament of the World's Religions (CPWR) was officially established in 1988 when two monks from the Vivekananda Vedanta Society of Chicago suggested organizing a centennial celebration of the 1893 World’s Parliament of Religions, held in Chicago in conjunction with the Columbian Exposition. The Council for a Parliament of the World's Religions incorporated as a non-profit organization dedicated to extending the spirit and legacy of the original event through subsequent Parliaments of the World's Religions. In 1993, the Parliament of the World's Religion's was convened in Chicago, with 8000 people from all over the world coming together to celebrate diversity and harmony and to explore religious and spiritual responses to critical issues. At the 1993 Parliament, an assembly of religious and spiritual leaders gave assent to a groundbreaking document: "Towards a Global Ethic: And Initial Declaration." The Declaration is a powerful statement of the ethical common ground shared by the world's religious and spiritual traditions.

Scope
The 1993 Parliament of World’s Religions in Chicago records document the logistics undertaken to plan the conference and celebration. The collection contains a complete run of the NEWSLETTER/CPWR Journal, publications, committee files, correspondence, organizational records, a signed copy of the Global Ethic, and press clippings. Also included are posters, souvenirs, and audio-visual media created for and during the parliament. Hank Jacobsen and Francine Salerno’s photographs document attendees present at the 1993 parliament. Materials about the incorporation of the Council for the Parliament of World’s Religions, development of the organization’s logo, and meeting minutes of the Executive and Research Committees are also part of this collection.

Correspondence of Parliament Responses 1993

These boxes consist of general correspondence between the Parliament office administrators and the various boards, sponsors, donors, as well as inquiries from the public regarding the various activities of the Council between 1988 and 1995. The amount of materials in the files tapers off as the Parliament came closer because correspondence began to be sent to the Program Board as their duties increased.

Research Committee Essays

These files are the collected essays and papers written and gathered by the CPWR Research Committee. A great majority of the essays deal with the 1893 Parliament and the different ethnic and religious groups involved. The first group of essays are general writings used and distributed by the committee members. The second group of essays were given at the “People and Themes of the 1893 Parliament” Conference in 1990 and the third group of essays were ones given at the 1991 “Voices from the Margins” Conference. The works are arranged alphabetically by author within each group.

These files consist of one-page descriptions of each of the major presenters and V.I.P.’s on the CPWR database. Most give some background information of the individual and often the time, date, and title of the presentations he or she was scheduled to participate in during the Parliament. Important members of the Parliament that are not found in the V.I.P. Database are probably located in the Assembly Database files. The Assembly Member Database files consist of the same type of materials and are organized in the same way as the V.I.P. database, however, the individuals described are all members of the Assembly of Religious and Spiritual Leaders organized by the CPWR.

Box 38 - Host Committee Program Description Worksheets 1993
In the early stages of planning for the Parliament, the Program Board requested that the host committees fill out worksheets for each suggested presentation. Most committees responded. These worksheets gave the Program board an idea of the type of presentations that were being suggested and how to organize them. They are arranged according to host committee.

Box 39 - Host Committee Presentation Drafts and Finals (1993)
As planning continued, the Program Board printed several drafts of presentation information and distributed some of them internally and to the Host Committees. After review, changes were made and the final presentation lists were printed. These drafts and finals are organized by type of presentation and style under the individual Host Committees, but not all Host Committees are represented.

Jain Host Committee
After the difficult process of organizing and selecting the various presentations was over, the CPWR created the presentation sheets as a way to tell at a glance where and when a particular delegate was to speak and to help with the creation of the program. These sheets contain the information on the individual presenters who were not affiliated with a Host Committee. They are filed alphabetically according to presenter.
